OIL FLOWS IN MANITOBA'S FIRST FIELD PIPE LINE

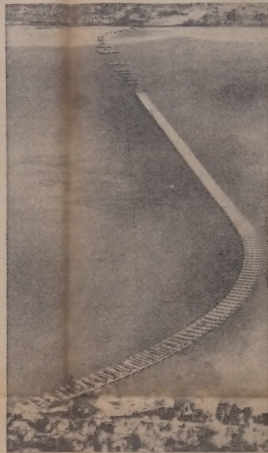

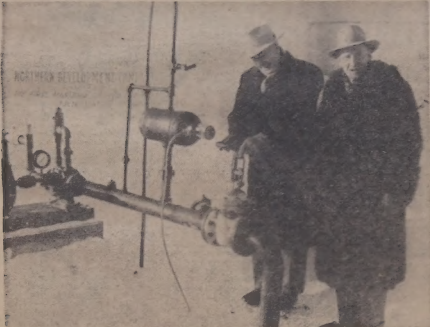

January 17th was an important day for Virton and for Manitoba, for on that day oil began flowing through the province's first oil field pipe line. Although bitterly cold that day a group of oil company officials and representatives of the town and province gathered at California Standard Provincial battery No. 2-15, near the home of

Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Williams, to see J. G. Cowan, deputy minister of Manitoba's Department of Mines and Natural Resources, turn a valve which started the oil flowing through the $250,000 project. Below are pictures taken during the operation of turning the valve and those in attendance:

THIS S-CURVE in the Tappan Zoo bridge being built to carry the New York State highway over the Hudson river between Tarrytown, top, and the west bank of the river south of Nyack, N.Y. Surveys were designed by engineers because of the topography on both shores. It was considered easier to make the turns over water rather than on land, where 90 degree curves would have been necessary.

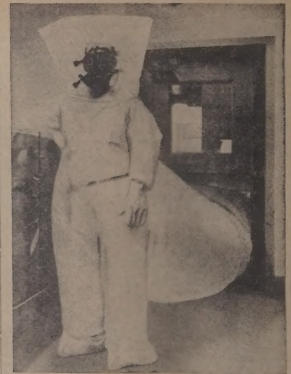

JUST THE THING—If you're thinking of a trip to Mars, here's just the thing to keep you from missing interplanetary connections. The world's first space timepiece shows the comparative passage of time—days, hours, months and years—on earth and on the planets. One second here is just as fast as each time due to greater distance from the sun.

The top picture shows the group in attendance at the official opening of Northern Development Company's field pipe line system serving the Virton-Idley field. The center picture shows J. G. Cowan, deputy minister of Manitoba's Department of Mines and Natural Resources, turn the valve which opened the Northern Development Co. Ltd. new oil field pipe line, the first of its type in the province. At the right is Virton's Mayor D. J. Reid. The lower picture from left to right are Don Brandt, general manager of Northern Development Co. Ltd., Edmonton; Lou MacCallum, vice-president of Northern Development Co. Ltd., and Jack Trevel of California Standard Oil Company, Virton.

FOURTEEN PASSENGERS LOST THEIR LIVES in one of the Province of Quebec's worst highway disasters when this bus traveling to Three Rivers crashed into a tractor-truck at Yamashiche and immediately burst into flames. The machine occurred just the night of Jan. 30 when most of the passengers were either asleep or drinking and had no advance warning of the tragedy. Both drivers and eight of the 23 passengers escaped death. The above photo shows the damage suffered by the bus after it was tossed by Three Rivers.

THIS PLASTIC BALLOON-LIKE SUIT is the latest atomic attire at General Electric Company's large plutonium plant at Richland, Wash. It provides a protective barrier against radiation in "hot" such areas.

UP TO HIS NECK IN WORK—No, it's not a character from the Wizard of Oz, but an airman completely wrapped up in his work. Corporal Bud Carmody, of Charlottesville, P.E.I., displays some of the various sizes of tires in stock at the RCAF's No. 30 Air Materiel Base at Langer, England. Tires of all types and dimensions are only one of the many items handled by the modern depot near Nottingham, which supplies the RCAF's NATO air division of twelve jet fighter squadrons in England, France and Germany.

SNOW QUEEN—Bubbly dressed for the occasion, blonde Cheryl, 15-year-old sophomore from Marlborough, Mass., stands in the midst of her white domain after being elected Snow Queen at the University of Massachusetts.

CHICKEN FINGERS—Joe Bonagaglia, former Yankee great, chomies aside with little Kevin Walsh, mascot of the Rutgers, N.J., P.A.L. team, during a recent appearance in New York City. Bonagaglia interrupted his huggings with screen star Marilyn Monroe to come to the big city for a TV show.

PLAN FOR PEACE—Insisted Albert S. Eskin with soon visit United Nations members to urge them to try his plan for world peace. Eskin, 62, believes that elimination of poverty would bring peace to the globe. This, he says, can be accomplished by a 2 per cent. federal tax on all business and manufacturing transactions, receipts to be given to adult citizens of the various countries at the rate of $60 to $100 a month regardless of income.
